SUBJECT: COVID-19 Update 1

At NPRC, we put our students and communities first. Out of an abundance of caution and concern for the health and safety of those we work with and those we serve amidst the current public health concerns, NPRC will be transitioning to remote delivery of instruction and encouraging all faculty and staff to work from home beginning Monday, March 16.

We are thankful that our instructional delivery model already allows for considerable flexibility in operating remotely, so classes will continue much the same as usual. Classes will occur on the same days and times as scheduled, but most instructors and students will be participating from their homes at least until April 10.

NPRC is closely monitoring this situation and recognizes that the public health concerns and protocols related to the Coronavirus are continually evolving. We will continue to re-evaluate based on regional circumstances and provide updates from the Pennsylvania Health Department and the Center for Disease Control and Prevention.
