

COVID-19 Update

May 20, 2020

Based on information from the World Health Organization, the CDC, and other public health and infectious disease specialists, it appears that we will see a resurgence of infection in the fall semester. When specifically that will occur will be difficult to predict, but we are planning for the fall semester with the consideration of the health and well-being of our students, faculty, staff, and communities at the forefront.

With that said, NPRC has made the decision to continue offering classes remotely during the fall 2020 semester. We will continue to monitor this situation and make a decision about class delivery for Spring 2021 no later than the beginning of November.

NPRC will continue to follow state regulations and recommendations during this time and our staff will continue to work remotely. They are monitoring incoming phone calls and messages and will respond as quickly as possible. Students who have a technology challenge outside of class times, may fill out the online technology help form or send an email to the help desk email account. For help during class sessions, our Instructional Support Specialist, Regina Russell can be contacted via email or by cell at 814-584-0067.

Application and enrollment for the Summer and Fall semesters is open and our Student Success Specialists are available to set up virtual admissions meetings to assist with application or enrollment questions that you may have. Please email Admissions to request a meeting with a Student Success Specialist.

Additional updates on actions we are taking during this unprecedented time will be provided as they become available. We appreciate your patience and understanding.
